ReEmployAbility Sponsors The Spring of Tampa Bay's 'Handbags & Happy Hour' Event

Tampa, FL (May 2, 2017) – ReEmployAbility, the largest national provider of specialty early Return-to-Work (RTW) services and transitional employment programs, is proud to announce its sponsorship of Handbags & Happy Hour. This charity event will be held on Thursday, May 4, 2017 in Tampa and all proceeds will benefit The Spring of Tampa Bay.

According to their website, The Spring has assisted housed, and supported over 60,000 women and children who are survivors of domestic violence in Hillsborough County. They are one of the largest domestic violence centers in Florida and the first domestic violence agency in the United States to have an accredited on-site school for resident children.

ReEmployAbility has a strong passion for service to the community. Owners Frances Ford and Debra Livingston consider it the cornerstone of what makes Transition2Work, the company's proprietary return-to-work program, such a success. When program participants are placed at non-profit organizations, the transitional assignments provide an improved sense of value and self-esteem which helps injured employees heal while making a valuable contribution to the community.

"Our dedication to giving back to the community is always at the forefront of everything we do as a company," Livingston said. "Because we are a women owned company, we are drawn to The Spring of Tampa and are amazed by all of the remarkable things they do for these victims of domestic abuse. We are proud to sponsor this wonderful event."

Handbags & Happy Hour will be held from 6:30 – 9 p.m. at the Rialto Theatre. There will be silent auction of designer purses which are listed on their website. For more information on the event, please visit www.peaceinpurple.com.
